CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MEET.

The monthly dinner of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Hondo Hotel dining room at seven o'clock next Tuesday evening, March 9th. The meeting is held in pursuance of the adjournment of the last meeting, held on Tuesday night preceding the second Wednesday in January. At that meeting it was voted to meet once each month at a dinner, each member to pay $1.50 dues each quarter, all expenses of the dinner and other incidentals to be paid out of the funds to accrue from these dues. Membership is open to any citizen of the community who is willing to pay the price and cares to attend.

This is a new arrangement, and the promoters of the movement are hopeful of effecting an active, virile organization that will function as a real Chamber of Commerce.

For several years Hondo has "kidded" herself with the claim to a Chamber of Commerce, but the body was so loosely held together that it was without means or authority to function actually as such an organization. Usage and custom had virtually limited it to the work of raising and disbursing funds to maintain the street lights and hire the night watchman. These duties will continue to have its same care and attention. The funds for night watchman and lights will be handled for the same exclusive purposes and in the same manner without diversion for other purposes. At the same time, out of the special fund to be created the Chamber of Commerce will be enabled to render a more extensive service both to its membership and to the community.

If you have not already done so, see President J. G. Barry or Secretary W. T. Crow, and arrange to attend the meeting at the Hondo Hotel next Tuesday evening.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

The plan of salvation as the Bible brings it to us, provides for the deliverance of sinful man through the life and death of God's Son, Jesus Christ. The image of God in which man was created was lost through sin, and the Bible teaches all men are sinners and also you. Sin condemns all men and also you. No man can save himself; neither can you. The Bible teaches we are saved by Grace; you cannot earn salvation. The Bible proclaims Christ as the world's Redeemer; He is also your Redeemer. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him may not perish, but have everlasting life." The Lutheran Church teaches that the Bible teaches concerning this way of salvation. You are invited to learn more about this Church. You will want to know all you can about God's plan of salvation.

CELEBRATE SIXTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Richter, a venerable and highly respected couple of Hondo, in company with their six children, a number of grandchildren and other relatives, observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon, February 28, 1937, at their home near here. Sixty years earlier, on March 1, 1877, Mr. Richter, a young man of twenty-four, claimed Miss Alice Reuter, then nineteen years of age, for his happy bride, the wedding taking place at the home of the bride's mother at old Fort Lincoln on the Seco. Justice of the Peace Miller performed the ceremony. To this long and happy union were born eight children, four boys and four girls, and four grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Jacob Rothe of San Antonio, Mrs. W. J. Nester, Mrs. August Schroeder and Mrs. Hugo Schweers, Paul and Guido Richter, all of Hondo. There are also twenty-four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren to enjoy the companionship of their grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Richter moved to their present farm home near Hondo on September 15, 1898, and have lived to endear themselves to a wide circle of friends not only in Hondo but throughout the County.

On the occasion of their sixtieth anniversary the afternoon was spent in conversation for the older folk and games for the young people. A delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was also served to those assembled.

Those enjoying the happy occasion were as follows: the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Richter; Mrs. Richter's only sister, Mrs. Mary Rothe, and Mrs. Alice Reinhardt from the Seco; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rothe, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rothe, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wetta and children, and Wm. Rothe, all of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nester and children, Roland, Walter, Alma and Willie Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windrow, Mr. and Mrs. August Schroeder, Elmer Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Schweers and little daughter, Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schweers and children, Elvira, Zella, Mimmie Doyle, and Guido, and Paul and Guido Richter, all of Hondo; Miss Hettie Nester, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hart and sons, Louis, Jr., and Carl Richter, all of San Antonio.

The many Hondo friends of Mr. and Mrs. Richter extend congratulations to them on their long years of successful and happy married life.

"WINTER OVERCOAT" BOOSTS COTTON YIELD FOR FARMER.

The following is a clipping issued by the Press Service, United States Department of Agriculture: A 5-acre field near Rome, Ga., yielded one-half bale of cotton per acre in 1932; two bales per acre in 1936. In the intervening years, the owner, J. S. Cutton, planted a cover crop of legumes each winter. The legumes provided a "winter overcoat" for his field, that otherwise would have been exposed to the rains, according to the Soil Conservation Service. They also fixed nitrogen in the soil and made it capable of supporting a heavier growth of cotton. He saved the soil of the 5-acre field, increased its fertility and conserved moisture. His 1936 cash income from the field was $740. If his 1932 crop had been sold at 1936 prices, he would have received $185.

More than a half million acres of cropland in the Cotton Belt will be covered with legumes throughout the winter months, as a result of the programs of the various State experiment stations, the Soil Conservation Service and other agencies advocating this practice.

FORMER HONDO BOY RISES IN PROFESSION.

Of interest to the many friends of Wallace Walton Heath is the article on pages 58 and 59 in the February issue of The Good Housekeeping Magazine entitled "Our New Studio Rooms", in which he collaborated with the studio directors as the architect. In addition to his routine work he has taken up the writing of articles in line with his profession and several have already been published by House Beautiful magazine and other professional journals.

RURAL POSTOFFICE AND STORE ROBBED.

Postal inspectors here were tracing clues Friday to recover more than $100 in stamps and cash included in approximately $500 in loot taken from the Alex Boehme & Co. mercantile store and postoffice at Rio-medina between late Thursday or early Friday. Sheriff C. J. Schuehle of Hondo was in San Antonio Friday to enlist the aid of San Antonio police and Bexar County officers in tracking down the burglars.

Schuehle said that the burglars pried open the door of the combination general store and postoffice, ransacked the place and escaped with $44.76 in stamps and $46.76 in postal funds, besides cash and goods from the store. He said that $50 in silver and $60 in pennies were missing, two shotguns, two .22-caliber rifles, 100 boxes of shotgun shells, 1,000 rounds of .22-caliber ammunition, 22 in tobacco, 12 cartons of cigarettes, 36 pounds coffee and 300 postal money order blanks.—San Antonio Express.

DIED.

Otto Karl Brucks, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Brucks of the Verde community, died Saturday February 27, 1937, at the home of an uncle, 1614 West Craig Avenue. His remains were brought to Hondo and after a funeral service at the Horder funeral parlors, were buried Sunday afternoon in the Quihi cemetery. Rev. Robert Paine, pastor of the New Fountain Methodist Church conducted the service.

The young man was born on July 25, 1919, and had reached the age of 17 years, 7 months and two days. He was first taken ill with the flu a few weeks ago. Complications set in and he passed away after much suffering.

Death is always sad, but when it comes to an only child and one so young and full of promise it is sad indeed. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of all who know them.

KNOB-KNOCKERS AGAIN.

Knob-knockers visited Hondo for a return engagement again last Monday night. This time they broke into the Monkhouse & Starnes grain and feed warehouse, forced open the safe the old way of knocking off the knob and rifled its contents of $92.63 in cash.

The firm was protected by burglary insurance, which was a wise precaution as the job was the work of experts. Efforts to find a clue disclosed that they wore gloves and left not the trace of a clue.

LOSES HAY.

Mrs. Roy Dailey paid our office a call Tuesday. We were sorry to learn from her that fire of an unknown origin destroyed three big haystacks belonging to her father, Mr. John Hartmann, at 10 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday of last week. With the heroic work of himself and neighbors who came to his help the flames were kept from his barn and two other stacks of hay.

Mr. Hartman had no insurance and his loss was complete.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to one and all for the many expressions of sympathy extended us in our sorrow. Your kindness and consideration has comforted us as nothing else could for we feel you, too, share our grief in the death of our beloved father, W. H. Windrow.

Gratefully yours,

THE CHILDREN.

QUIHI NOTES.

And now if you will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me; and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left. Gen. 24:49.

We again contemplate the same text. Eliezer is waiting for a clear-cut answer so as to know which way to turn. He had made his position and mission and objective very clear. What will the answer be? No evasion, no postponement, no complimentary phrases, no garbled, untrue statements of any kind, he wants. Straight from the shoulder, from the innermost heart, the answer must come. How timely such a request even today. Our days are suffering with garbled, tainted, hide-and-go-seek phraseology, working much confusion, irritation and wrong decisions. Our very language lends a wrong helping hand in that line. We speak of an Indian and mean a vessel; of an Indian fig and mean a pear; of Indian hemp and mean dogbane; of Indian millet and mean Chinese sugar-cane; of an Indian potato and mean a giant sunflower. Hundreds of similar misnomers could be added. It has become an art not a fine art, but an artful lure, to prevaricate, to misrepresent in words and figures and displays and rhetorical frame-ups, to sell, to captivate the public attention, will power and purses for certain products, not because they are made so extremely good and low-priced, as heralded, not because they are so well-adapted, so indispensable to universal need, as proclaimed, not because these products are made primarily for the welfare of the buyers, but for the benefit of the business concern. But the language is twisted and garnished and vigorously manhandled so as to become a game instrument to mystify and bamboozle a gullible public and lead them in an unhappy merry-go-round of financial embarrassments for years to come. To get a cross-section of this trickery listen in at your radio, that modern advertising sheet, every day, even Sundays, and hear what they serve you with wordsy slush and buncombe, adding their skits and scoops, song and drama, contests and prizes, joke-smiths and whinnying Eds and shrilling Susans—not for "amazing bargains, but for mass-hypnotism, and millions fall for the magic, and buy. Other scams and skeddaddle in disgust. Eliezer asks for a clear, true answer. We all do.

Mrs. Alb. Reus has gone through a major operation at the Hondo hospital. We are glad that she has every prospect for a fast recovery. Thanks to the Lord Who blessed the work.

We've just heard that Mrs. Paul Oeffinger is very sick. She has been an invalid for years and her vitality has been low. Remember her in your prayers.

At the funeral of Mr. H. H. Balzen who has been called home after a long and lingering illness, we saw Mr. Hy. Schuehle with his arm in a sling. A mishap with the horse, as so often. Trust it will be a matter of the past soon.

CITIZENSHIP.

By Clayton Rand.

Henry W. Grady left us an expression of a conception of the relations between the citizen and the state which is worth taking to heart, if perchance there yet remains time for its application: "Exalt the citizen. As the State is the unit of government, he is the unit of the State. Teach him that his home is his castle, and his sovereignty rests beneath his hat. Make him self-respecting, self-reliant and responsible.

"Let him lean on the State for nothing that his own arm can do, and on the government for nothing that his State can do.

"Let him cultivate independence to the point of sacrifice, and learn that humble things with unbartered liberty are better than splendors bought with its price."

SMOOTHING THE ROAD TOWARD DICTATORSHIP.

The worst enemy of governmental stability is governmental extravagance.

Today the Federal government is spending far in excess of income, in spite of the highest taxes in history. Little, if anything, has been done to correct this grave condition. On the contrary, it has become a popular political game to see who can get the most money from the Federal treasury. The few who plead for economy are soon shuffled obscurely into the background.

Should this extravagance continue long enough, there can be but one result—national bankruptcy. Few governments survive such a collapse. The way is then paved for iron-handed dictatorship. And dictatorship means government by violence.

We don't want machine gun squads to keep order in this country. We don't want detention camps for those who have the temerity to disagree with the views of a dictator in power. But we may get them if we do not soon adopt a conservative fiscal policy that will balance the budget and start on the long job of reducing the national debt.—Industrial News Review.

THE AGE OF REASON???

In considering the reasons given by proponents of reorganization plans for the United States Supreme Court, one comes to some "blank wall" conclusions.

If seventy years should be the retirement age for Supreme Court Justices, why not for U. S. Senators and Representatives? If a man past seventy is no longer capable of considering governmental, legal and economic problems on the bench, is he any more capable of considering them in Congress?

Supposing younger judges had rejected the same acts of Congress as unconstitutional, as did the present court? Would there be agitation for their removal?

Many laws proposed by Senators and Representatives under seventy years of age do not lead one to have confidence in their intelligence.

The egotism of a younger generation is often astounding, but in the present case it passes understanding.—Industrial News Review.

BOB STEELE TO THE RESCUE!

It's a family feud, starting two generations ago, that adds to the hatred felt by Kent, arch-plotter in "The Last of the Warrens," latest Bob Steele thrill-Western, now playing at the Colonial Theatre, for young Ted Warren, his successful rival in love. An oldtime Kentucky feud, as history proves, usually lasted until the last survivor of the contending families was wiped out of existence. In this case, Kent, shoots and imagines he has slain Ted's father and makes desperate efforts to eliminate the son as well. But the elder Warren survives his wound, and Ted carries the war into his foe-man's territory with a zest and deadly determination that sweeps aside all opposition. You'll glory in this dashing, romantic tale of reckless youth and matchless daring, the greatest contribution to the screen made by Bob Steele.

After all, our worst misfortunes never happen, and most miseries lie in anticipation.—Balzac.

The Medina County terracing crew terrace acreage totaling 645 acres on five farms during February. In addition to those, lines were run on five other farms consisting of a total of 512 acres. These will be terraced as soon as the crew can get to them.
All terracing applications on file will be handled as speedily as possible, but with only one set of equipment and crew we are handicapped for speed.

In 1934 R. E. Edmondson of Ellis county took charge of an almost worthless 15 acre field that was a thicket of briars, undergrowth, and trees. The land was cleared and only the best pecan trees were left standing. In 1935 the field yielded more than 7,000 pounds of native pecans. This year Edmondson sodded the field to bermuda grass and planted Italian rye grass, and now has a pasture which is taking care of several head of stock.

HELP FEWER FARMERS BUT DO BETTER JOB R. A. WORKERS TOLD.

Local supervisors of rural rehabilitation are being instructed to do a more thorough job of supervision, even if it calls for cutting down the number of cases handled. This is one of several steps being taken by Resettlement Administration to carry out more effectively the recent recommendations of President Roosevelt for improving conditions of tenant farmers and helping them toward eventual ownership of their land.

New instructions are being passed down the line from D. P. Trent, regional director, and members of his staff who accompanied him recently to Washington for a week of conferences. Upon his return, Trent said that farm and home plans would be reviewed where necessary, to determine whether funds in each case are adequate for financing a satisfactory program. "A complete job of rehabilitation in a more limited number of cases will be our goal," Trent said, pointing out that in the past the supervisory activities of the organization have been heavily handicapped by the large case load. More than 90 Texas and Oklahoma families have been served with grants or loans for each employee of the Resettlement Administration in the combined county, state, and regional offices, Trent said.

Lists have already been prepared showing the number of families who will be dropped from Resettlement Administration rolls in each county because of lack of funds or "because they have not shown ability to be rehabilitated". Last year there were 28,700 "farm plan" families under Resettlement supervision in Texas but during the first two months of the new year only 15,000 such families have been scheduled for aid.
Sixty-one per cent of these families have already received the initial check on loans for 1937 which in the final aggregate will amount to more than $2,000,000.

In Oklahoma, where 12,500 "farm plan" families were listed last year, approximately one-half that number have been scheduled this year. The ceived their initial check on a prospective total loan of $1,200,000.

acters are the shanty-boaters who live, love and die on their ramshackle barges on the lower Mississippi.

The cast includes Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, Helen Westley, Buddy Ebsen, Walter Brennan, Walter Catlett, Anthony Martin and Katherine de Mille.

Twenty-four new canning plants

CLASSES ALSO VISIT SWIFT & COMPANY.

Thursday, February 25, Mr. Sadler, advisor, took both classes of Vocational Agriculture students to San Antonio to attend the Southwest Texas Boys' Fat Stock Show. Calves, hogs, sheep, and goats were seen at the show. Edgar Saathoff, a student of Hondo High School, entered a litter of fat hogs. We were glad to hear that he won Grand Champion honors of the entire show, winning champion of heavy weight litter and seventh place in heavy weight individual hog. Russell Peters entered three sheep but failed to place.

The same day the classes visited Swift & Company. A guide took the classes through the entire plant. At noon, Mr. Jones, the manager of Swift & Company in San Antonio, honored the students with a free lunch. Those who made the trip were: Marvin Grell, Jack Hartung, John Mumme, J. H. Edgar Saathoff, a first year Vocational Agricultural student, won Grand Champion of heavy litter class and of all classes of the show on a litter of Poland-China hogs and also placed seventh on one individual hog in heavy class. The litter was 6 months and 20 days old. The litter averaged 270 lbs. apiece. His eight pigs cost him $27.46; his feed cost $158.50; he fed 144 bushels of corn, 75 lbs. of tankage, 200 lbs. shorts, and 270 gallons of milk. His ration for the hogs per day was as follows: Corn, 5 parts; tankage, 1-4 part; shorts, 3 parts; and milk, 3 gallons. He fed his grown in a self-feeder and milk in a trough. He, himself, worked 160 hours; his father worked 8 1-2 hours, of which expenses were considered. Number of days on feed were 165. Each hog gained 1 3-8 lbs. per day. Edgar's entire litter of eight weighed 2,170 lbs. The judge in San Antonio congratulated Edgar on having the best fed hogs he had ever seen.

SCIENCE CLUB TAKES FIELD TRIP.

The members of the Science Club enjoyed a wiener roast on the banks of the Verde Monday afternoon March 1, 1937.

When all had arrived a large fire was built. Then they looked at some moss, creek water, and a frog's foot under the microscope. Several other objects were viewed through magnifying glasses.

After some time they began to roast wieners to make hot-dogs. They also had beans, potato salad, and marshmallows.

After supper they hiked north along the creek observing odd plants, rocks, and birds, which Mr. Moses told those present the names of and explained their structure.

Shortly before dark they departed for home.

Those who attended were: Betty Thurman, Judy Lacy, Darlene Wendland, Lorine Neuman, Mildred Van Fleet, Mary Ann Noonan, Mary Louise Haegelin, Jerline Haegelin, Albert Lacy, Arthur Lacy, Hubert Hermes, Bertram Eckhart, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Lacy, Mrs. Noonan, and Mr. Moses.

OWLETS— SENIOR CLASS PLAY SELECTED.

"April's Fool", a royalty play, by Jay Tobias has been selected as the Senior class play. The night of Friday, April 16, has been selected as the date for its presentation.

In the cast of this three-act play are eleven characters—five boys and six girls. After a series of try-outs the members of the Senior class will be cast in these roles, probably on Thursday. The directors, stage, property, and business managers will also be selected this week.

"April's Fool" was selected for its unusually clever dialogue, its variety of character types, and its combination of pathos, drama, romance, and comedy. The play is intensely interesting and exciting throughout.

OWLETS— HOME ECONOMICS MEETING.

The Home Economics Club met Thursday for its regular meeting in the auditorium. There was no program so the business was taken up.

Plans were made for a hike, which will be Friday afternoon out on the Hondo Creek. A committee was appointed to see about the details.

Announcements were made concerning the District Future Home Makers Meeting which will be held in Crystal City on March 27. In the last of April there will be a State Rally and our club is hoping to be able to send three or four representatives to it.

There was no further business so the meeting adjourned.

OWLETS— OWLETTE CLUB ENTERTAINS.

COOPERATION.

From THE OWL.

By cooperation we live and let live. In this complex world of ours, everyone must cooperate with the other in order to survive. Without this, our civilization would come to a standstill. It is through this that America has reached the peak of its civilization. A common interest in each other has done this. In both large and small problems this condition prevails. Taking the smaller ones first, we come to school work.

There are many phases of school work that promote the general welfare of our future. One of these is our school paper. It is through this channel the thoughts of the student are conveyed to his fellow-students. In order to have a school paper we must have cooperation, not only by the students, but greatly by the sponsors of our education. It is through them that we are in school; it is through them that our school paper is made possible. How few of the students ever stop and realize this! The advertisements in this paper serve, not only as a help to their respective businesses, but to give us a chance to prepare for the business of our future. Their cooperation is never failing. They have done everything in their power to better the school.

We appreciate their cooperation in the past, and hope that they will continue to help in the future.

OWLETS— FOURTH GRADE.

Don Peters went to San Antonio. Darlene Brucks went to Quihi. Frances Martin went to Biry and Moore.

Doris Stiegler went to Yancey. Hal Hunter made two trips to San Antonio.

These are the members of the fourth grade who made trips during the week-end.

We are studying Holland and Switzerland in our Geography and English work. It has been interesting to collect pictures suggestive of these two countries. We are making a large scrap book.

OWLETS— IN PLAIN ENGLISH.

The university president was delivering his baccalaureate. In the audience were an elderly man and woman, obviously foreigners, who were having heavy going as they listened to the president address the class of which their son was a member.

"What he say?" finally demanded the mother, her brow knitted.

"Who?" asked the father sleepily.

"The beega falla in black robes. What he say?"

"He say school is out."

"My love for you drives me mad." "I think I'm the one to get mad about it."

SAN ANTONIO LIVESTOCK. Monday, March 1, 1937.

Cattle receipts 500 head; calves 600 head, Monday on the San Antonio livestock market. Early trading in the cattle division was uneven but generally active to both shippers and packers on comparatively tight receipts. Calves and cow offerings sold steady to strong with fed yearlings about steady with late last week. Bulls and other classes were unchanged.

The bulk of fed yearlings cashed at $7.00 to $7.50 with a few steer yearlings up to $8.00 and a few show yearlings to $10.00 per hundred-weight. A few plain short fed yearlings sold down to $6.50, with grass offerings below. Loads of 1314 and 1264 pound fed steers weighed up to $8.25 with some out at $7.25. Medium to good grade grass calves sold at $5.50 to $7.00, with short fed kinds at $6.50 to $7.00. Common grade calves ranged down to $4.00 with culls to $3.50 and below. Cows were active with low cutter and cutters mostly $3.00 to $3.75; few shells below. Butcher cows sold mostly at $3.75 to $4.75 with a few good fat cows up to $5.50. Weighty bulls cashed mostly at $5.00 and down. Best stocker calves ranged from $6.00 down to $5.00.

Hogs, 700 head. The market was active and steady to strong with late last week. Top of $9.35 was paid by packers and shippers. The bulk of good to choice 180 to 250 pound butchers cashed at $9.00 to $9.35. Best 140 to 160 pound offerings brought $7.50 to $8.50; 160 to 180 pounds, $8.50 to $9.25; 260 to 300 pounds, $9.00 to $9.35. Packing sows sold steadily at 7.50 to $8.00. Butcher pigs were weak and sold slowly at mostly $6.00 to $7.00.

Sheep, 100 head. The supply consisted mostly of wethers which were unsold near the close. A load of shorn offerings were held above $5.00. A few woolled lambs were unsold. No goats were on offer. The market was quotably steady with last week's sales.

Texas' 4-H baby beef champion for the season, Byron Eckert, 15, of Art, fed out 19 calves in five years. His prizes at county and state shows total $510.53, more than half of which he won this year at the Fort Worth, San Antonio and San Angelo shows, and the Mason County Fair. Total sales proceeds on his calves are certified as $3,333.19. The boy was a member of this year's winning livestock judging team. His latest recognition is to receive the Armour all-expense trip valued at $120.00 to the 15th National Club Congress to be held in Chicago, Nov. 27-Dec. 5. It was awarded by L. L. Johnson, state boy's club agent, who reported nearly 3,900 contestants in 27 counties for the trip. The boy will be one of the Texas delegation of 25 of the year's outstanding clubsters to the Club Congress.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

IF YOU are the sort of woman who wants to know what you get when you shop, then you'll welcome the new tags which manufacturers of fine mohair velvet are attaching to upholstered furniture of the better grade. These tags will enable you to tell whether the upholstery material on your chair or sofa is 100% mohair, or 50% mohair. A gold and black shield-shaped tag identifies the 100% mohair fabrics, and a silver tag denotes those made of 50% mohair.

For years, women have bought food by the label and cosmetics by the package. More recently, they have been taught to look for labels in dresses, which tell whether the fabric is pure silk, or washable, or pre-shrunk, etc.

Now, the same principle is being adopted in the home furnishings field so that the woman purchaser can identify quality mohair velvet on upholstered furniture. The tag is further backed by the Bureau of Standards at Washington, who set up the standards based on number of tufts to the inch—the greater number of tufts producing a thicker, more durable fabric. Standards also assure colorfastness and treatment to prevent attack by moths.

So—look for the gold and silver shield-shaped tags when you want to be sure of getting quality mohair velvet on your upholstered furniture.

Research work of the University of Texas faculty and students in the lines of plant scientists is widely acknowledged among scientists in this field. One of the latest acknowledgements of this branch of the University has come from the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. E. J. Lund, professor of zoology at the University, has been asked to read a paper on "Electric Polarity in Plants", as one of three invitation papers in a symposium held before botanists of the association. Members of other botanical groups, including the Botanical Society of America, the American Phytopathological Society, the American Society of Plant Physiologists, and the Mycological Society of America, will meet jointly with the botany section of the association to hear this symposium.

Sales measured in dollars by 88 representative department stores in Texas during October increased 32.2 per cent over the like month last year and 18.3 per cent over the preceding month, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The average seasonal increase from September to October is 13.1 per cent. Aggregate sales during the first ten months were 18.3 per cent over those of the corresponding period a year ago.

Miller, Volney Boon, L. E. Heath, J. M. Finger, O. B. Taylor and T. B. Knopp.

Following several days of balmy, spring weather we had a recurrence of the cloudy, misty weather beginning Tuesday. Wednesday night and during the greater part of Thursday the precipitation on several occasions approximated a fairly good shower. As we close our forms late Thursday evening, however, a norther is threatening and the total precipitation has not been sufficient to put the much needed season in the ground.

What Vocation Shall My Boy Choose?

By J. D. Purdy

Director, School of Electrical Engineering, International Correspondence Schools.

We live in a changing world. Opportunities for success in the future will differ from those in the past. A young man's wise choice of his life work may do much to determine success or failure. How shall he choose?

The Transmission Engineer

SINCE Thomas A. Edison opened the first commercial electric light and power plant in New York City in 1882 the electrical industry has moved forward with enormous strides. Yet the industry is still in its infancy and the limits of its progress are not likely to be reached during the lifetime of anyone living today.

With work being pushed on huge power projects that dwarf their predecessors, and with others equally huge being planned, one of the most promising fields for the young man eager to carve out a career lies in the transmission of electric power from its source to where it is to be used. Many of the great projects, planned or under construction, are in sparsely settled areas. Their maximum usefulness depends on the continued development of methods of transmitting their power to cities and towns perhaps hundreds of miles away.

The half-mile transmission lines of the 1880's have grown to a length of 250 to 300 miles. Can they be increased to still greater lengths? Can the load they carry be increased? Can they carry their load more economically and with less loss on the way? These are some of the questions the transmission engineer must answer, and those who prove able to answer them are certain of outstanding success in their careers.

To qualify as a transmission engineer requires technical training. Many men have obtained their training at a university, but others have proved that what can be learned in laboratory and classroom can also be learned by combining practical experience with spare time study. Any number of successful transmission engineers can look back to a beginner's job in a power plant supplemented by solitary study when the day's work was done.

The second annual South-West Texas Boys' Fat Stock Show will be held at San Antonio on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 25th, 26th and 27th, 1937. All qualified 4-H Club boys and students of vocational agriculture throughout South and West Texas are eligible to enter the show, and the dates have been so arranged so as not to conflict with other shows throughout the state, and thus permit these boys to go on to other shows. The show is sponsored jointly by the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce of San Antonio and the Union Stock Yards Company, with the State Department of Education at Austin, Texas A. & M. College at College Station, Texas Technological College at Lubbock and the Texas College of Arts & Industries at Kingsville cooperating.

A demonstration in treating goats with sulphur dip for control of the several species of goat lice was recently given at the Lee Pfleger ranch in Kimble county in the course of which 1,559 head were treated in three hours and 15 minutes. Specialists of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Extension Service conducted the demonstration, according to R. E. Homann, county agricultural agent. The use of 300 mesh wettable sulphur, long in the experimental state, is now being recommended and many Kimble county ranchmen hail it as a practical method of exterminating goat lice.

Protects seed against rotting Checks damping-off Improves acre yields

Make the most of your opportunity for good cotton profits this year. Save seed, save replanting and improve both your stand and yield by dust-treating seed with 2% CERESAN—or buy only cotton seed that has had this profitable treatment!

2% CERESAN reduces seed rotting and damping-off—gives growers uniform stands with less seed. This saving alone usually pays the cost of treatment; your increase in yield is all profit! In 40 recent tests, 2% CERESAN increased the average stand 59.8% before chopping; 30.8% after chopping—and increased the average yield almost 16.4%.

HENRY H. BALZEN.

Another life-long resident of Medina County and a worthy citizen and loyal friend has passed from life of toil and tribulation to rest and peace.
Mr. Henry H. Balzen was born at Quihi, Texas, on August 29, 1862.
His parents were among the early German pioneers in Medina County, and we recall some of the Indian stories related by the deceased, especially the fact that the Indians furnished food for the struggling family and kept them from starvation. Out of such a home of hardy settlers the departed came equipped to struggle upward in his earthly pilgrimage. He learned to endure hardships as a youth and became strong for the task of life, which he regarded with all earnestness and sincerity.
He was reared in a Christian home and was imbued with a strong character, being conscientious, honest and industrious. The parents gave their child to the Lord in Baptism and he was thoroughly trained in Christian faith and life in the church school and instruction periods, and was confirmed at the proper age. He was a life-long member of the Lutheran Church, and was active in St. Paul's of Hondo for many years.

Mr. Balzen grew to manhood in the Sturm Hill community, and it was here that he spent the 74 1-2 years of his life. As a successful rancher and farmer, Mr. Balzen was married to Anna Schuehle on December 13, 1883. They built the present home over 50 years ago, and Mr. Balzen recalled with satisfaction that he accomplished the task with his own hands. It was here that he spent the long months of illness and where he passed away. This was a happy union and was blessed with six children, one son, Robert, having died in infancy.
The home was permeated with a Christian atmosphere and a fond relation existed between parents and children. Being industrious and gifted with ability to manage well, Mr.
Balzen acquired a sizeable estate, and by dint of hard labor made a success of his occupation. In many ways the blessing of the Lord was apparent and the deceased remained a God-fearing Christian gentleman throughout. We give God the glory, as he also did, and are thankful for this noble life. He proved a good neighbor and his busy life was a useful one, by which he won the respect of all who knew him.

The departed was always in good health and having a strong constitution he withstood the threatening diseases until about two years ago, when he complained of illness. He would never allow himself to become ensnared with morbid thoughts, but always remained optimistic and hoped for improvement. About six months ago examinations revealed that a fatal malady was undermining his health.
He soon became bedfast and although not suffering any pains, yet grew weaker and more and more emaciated, until death visited him as he quietly breathed his last on Monday, March 1, 1937, at 7:00 P. M., surrounded by his faithful companion through life, and his children.

In administering the Word of God and the Sacraments to the deceased we found him a patient sufferer, and a very grateful recipient of the gifts of God for the strengthening of his faith. He was firmly established in his Christian faith to a blessed end May he rest in peace. Mr. Balzen attained the age of 74 years and 6 months.

His wife, a companion through life for 54 years, mourns the departure of a good and understanding husband. We sincerely sympathize with the widow and wish her God's true comfort. The children who are grieved over the loss of a wise and devoted father are: Mrs. A. W. Martin and Mrs. Clara Wurzbach of Sturm Hill, Texas; two sons, Edwin of Sturm Hill and Charles of Hondo and 8 grandchildren. Mr. Balzen is also survived by one brother, John,
of Sturm Hill and two sisters, Mrs.
Fritz Borchers of Quihi and Mrs.
Fritz Eckhardt of Bandera.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday, March 3, from the Hogger Funeral Home at Hondo with Rev. W. C. Leibfarth of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Hondo, in charge.
Rev. C. Weeber of Quihi delivered a German address. Interment was made at the Quihi Cemetery. The active pallbearers were: Anton Balzen, Robert Balzen, Alvin Balzen, Milton Bendele, Geo. Schuehle and Earl Starnes. Honorary pallbearers:
A. B. Brucks, Louis Burrell, Henry Frederichs, C. W. Gilliam, John Gros-senbacher and Ben de Joire.

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also who love his appearing."

There is an hour of perfect rest,
To mourning wand'ers given;
There is a joy for souls distressed
A balm for every wounded breast—
'Tis found above—in heaven.

With interest in Texas minerals increasing daily, the Texas Planning Board recently again urged the Texas farmer and landowner to negotiate separate leases for the oil and gas rights and for the mineral rights on their land. Maj. E. A. Wood, director of the planning board, pointed out that it has been customary for Texas landowners to include all mineral rights to his land when making an oil and gas lease. "In many instances," Maj. Wood said, "the farmer and the landowner is losing additional revenue from his land through the use of a lease form which gives the lessee the privilege of exploiting not only the oil and gas rights, but all other mineral rights as well. It is the landowner's privilege to negotiate separate leases, one for the oil and gas rights and one for the other mineral rights and he should take advantage of this privilege at every opportunity."

"Terraces kept a mortgage off my farm," Joe Smith of the Oden community told J. R. Surovik, agricultural agent of Somerville county, as he harvested a field which averaged 26 bushels of corn to the acre. Before the field was terraced five years ago it was a barren hillside full of gullies and washes and yielded no more than a few nubbins.

UNITED GAS SYSTEM

THE DEPENDABLE FUEL

OF THE HILLS.

By Sarah Mizelle Morgan

It was late October, the hills were beautiful beyond any description. Twilight was just beginning to cast its shifting shadows as Martha Willis strolled down the lane for one last visit to the old oak tree.

Lately, she had been tired in a strange sort of way. There was a queer fluttering inside her breast at times. She had not mentioned it to Jim—Jim worried over things too much.

Martha felt that strange fluttering again as she walked, but she just had to come once more to the old oak which she always referred to as her sanctuary. Tomorrow, she and Jim would be moving to the city. Edward wanted them there and settled before the holidays.

Her people had owned these acres for generations. She had played beneath its shade when a child. She and Jim had plighted their vows beneath its shelter.

It was here she had come when she had to be alone to think, make her decisions. It was here she had come after they had laid baby Martha beside the others of her people who slept in the little cemetery. She could see it from where she sat. It was here she had told young Jim goodbye the night before he marched away to war, and again—when she had received the letter saying he would never return. And now—

She did not want to leave this home, this place she loved. She could never be happy even for her limited days in a crowded city. Even now she could feel its walls closing in on her, crushing her, stifling her.

Perhaps it was best for them to go. Jim was no longer able to work the farm and make it pay. Still, she didn't see why they couldn't stay on. She could look after the chickens and the flowers. Surely they could get along some way. She loved it so here. Why was she a part of these hills and they of her. She had always been so happy here, so contented. Why couldn't Edward see that it would be better to let them stay? Couldn't he see that she and Jim were too old to be making a change now? Why was she old fashioned, city ways were not for her. Edward had said that they would have all the modern conveniences for their comfort. Hadn't she reared her family and lived herself this long without all those new-fangled things? And she hadn't missed them either! She loved this simplicity, this quiet of her hills. How lovely it was here all the time.

Jim had agreed with Edward that it would be better for them to go. Edward was a famous surgeon now and could give them every comfort, every luxury. Jim had said: "We will be more comfortable, mother, and Edward will be right there to look after us if we should get sick." But then Jim was not. "Of the hills."

"Oh, God!" Martha whispered softly. "Why must I leave? Why can't I stay here with my memories, where my life is? Please God! I couldn't stand the city even with all its modern conveniences. I want to stay here I love it so."

Above her, Martha could hear the soft rustling of the leaves, as if the old oak was trying to comfort her. Suddenly she grew calmer. Many times before, it had whispered to her, giving courage and strength, so why not when she needed it most?

"Its growing cool mother, you had better come in now," Martha heard Edward call. "You will need to rest for your trip tomorrow."

Slowly Martha returned to the little white cottage. From the porch she turned for one last look at the old oak but it was only a blur through her tears.

The first pink flush of dawn was staining the east, when Jim called to Martha:

"Hadden't we better be getting up now, mother? Edward will want to start early. You can sleep in the mornings after we get to the city. We will not need to be getting up so early."

But Martha did not answer. Strange, Jim thought. Martha has always been awake before, at the first faint sign of dawn.

Softly he touched her cheek. He felt cold and clammy.

She is cold, Jim thought. They should have had a little cover on the bed, these October nights were getting a bit chilly.

Gently he shook Martha's shoulder. But Martha lay still. There was a peaceful look on her face and a smile as if she were very happy.

Then, Jim knew. He knew he would go alone, for the hills had claimed forever, their own.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS.

By R. M. Hofer.

I was talking to the proprietor of a small cleaning and pressing shop in a western city recently. By working hard and denying themselves many pleasures, he and his wife had saved money and made investments, on the income from which they expected to live in their later years. But their capital had shrunk in value and their return had seriously declined on good industrial and mortgage securities, while taxes had greatly increased.

The proprietor said to me: "My wife and I are thinking seriously of doing what a friend of ours has just done—cash in on insurance policies, sell securities, and take a trip around the world before the tax collectors, license collectors and lawmakers eat up or confiscate the balance of our savings."

That's a pretty tough statement from a plain everyday citizen. But it is true and shows the trend of thought that is developing. The growing political tendency to undermine the morale of the nation by destructive legislation and taxation, is the greatest menace to recovery and future prosperity.—Industrial News Review.

FINISHING TEXAS RANGE BEAVES.

(Selected).

An experiment in the finishing out of Texas range cattle on Texas grown feed stuffs has recently been completed on the W. E. Wroe farms, near Asherton, Texas. The satisfactory results obtained in this experiment are of considerable interest to the cattlemen and farmers of the state, as confirming the possibility of greatly increasing profits in our cattle industry by feeding range cattle for delivery to market.

Texas is the leading beef cattle state of the Nation. The census of 1935 showed that there were on Texas farms 7,222,369 cattle, as compared with 5,583,471 in 1930. As a breeder state, Texas has long been preeminent but it has been the practice to finish our cattle extensively in Midwestern States. There has been progress along breeder-feeder lines, but it was slow until government regulations, requiring farmers to grow more feed stuffs, considerably stimulated the cattle finishing industry. It is estimated that about 500,000 cattle are being fed in Texas this year.

Mr. Wroe owns two farms in Dimmit county, Texas, including a total of 2,000 acres. His home place, La Laguna, is just northwest of Asherton on the Nueces river. Since 1918 he has been one of Southwest Texas' largest growers of winter vegetables. At one time he was known as one of the largest broccoli growers of the United States and in 1934 he had some 300 acres planted to this vegetable.

Knowing that Southwest Texas is one of the best cattle breeding sections of the state and that it is possible to grow heavy crops of excellent feed stuffs, Mr. Wroe became interested in the breeder-feeder movement and decided to conduct a rather extensive experiment in finishing range cattle for market on home grown feeds.

He was given the full and enthusiastic cooperation of Samuel E. McKnight, of Carrizo Springs, one of the oldest and best known Hereford breeders of the state. Mr. McKnight district for 25 years before acquiring in 1932, 31,000 acres in Dimmit and Zavalla counties, now stocked with his "U" brand of Herefords, all bred from registered stock—Prince Domino blood lines predominating.

One of the first points to be decided was as to the feed crops which it would be best to grow for use in this experiment. From Bulletin No. 461, issued by Texas A. & M. college, "The Composition and Utilization of Texas Feeding Stuffs," Mr. Wroe learned the percentage of digestible protein in Hegari head chops was the same as in corn chops, 6.4 per cent.

He planted some 250 acres of Hegari, from which he put up some 400 tons of full-grained, well-headed dry feed in rickled bundles from the first cutting, and over 1,000 tons of silage from the second cutting. He stacked also about 475 tons of small stemmed (broadcast) Red Top Cane. Three trench silos were constructed in a hill side (where the subsoil was a mixture of caliche and gravel) close to the feed lots, and 1,000 to 1,200 tons of full-grained Hegari was chopped from 3-8 to 5-8 inches in length and placed, with fifty gallons of water to the ton, in trenches, which were packed tight. Three mules and a drag were run up and down the trench while the filling was in progress.

Feed lots were located on a well drained slope and artesian well water was piped to concrete troughs in each lot.

Mr. McKnight threw over for feeding 211 head of Herefords, of various ages, during the period beginning December 15, 1935, and ending with the shipment of the final lot on May 6, 1936.

With the assistance of Mr. A. L. Sebastia, Dimmit county agent, and E. L. Williams, teacher of vocational agriculture from A. & M. College, a balanced ration of proteins, carbohydrates, vitamins from alfalfa, a relatively small percentage of cotton seed meal, and a constant of limestone and salt, was figured out per 1,000 pounds of live weight, and fed throughout the season. The morning feed of the full grained Hegari was usually cleaned from the troughs by 1:00 P. M. and the balanced ration of ground dry feed put in troughs at 3:00 to 4:00 P. M. All grain and hay was ground separately, combined as sacked in fifty-pound sacks, and the various lots of cattle fed amounts on the basis of their live weight.

An accurate test on the gain made in weights was possible on two lots. Thirty-two yearlings which came in December 28th, and which averaged 581 pounds each (feed lot weights) on arrival, were fed until May 6th, or 144 days, at the end of which period they averaged 962 pounds each (feed lot weights) a gain of 381 pounds each, or an average of 2.64 pounds per day. These yearlings were sold in the Kansas City market at top for finished beves.

Another test on 80 calves, which were fed from December 28th to March 15th, showed a gain of 1 1-2 pounds per day (feed lot weights). These calves were exhibited at the Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth and won third prize in a class of fifteen entries.

Mr. Wroe attributes much of the success of this experiment to the breeding lines in the Herefords supplied by Mr. McKnight, as he feels they are equipped with better digestive tracts than most other breeds and are better able to assimilate the food absorbed.

Among the lots fed were 49 head of registered "U" brand bulls, which were prepared for range service this spring and sold to various breeders. Cattlemen were pleased by the gain in weight and energy of these bulls and they found a ready market, 25 going to one ranch owner.

This finishing experiment was watched by many Southwest Texas cattlemen and the result confirms the belief that Texas cattle can be finished off on Texas grown grain and hay.

An outstanding fact brought to light by the 1935 agricultural census, as it concerns Texas, is that the live stock industry has almost completely overcome the effects of the drought of 1933-34. There are more cattle on hand, and in much better condition, the most striking gain being in Dimmit county—from 8,400 in 1930 to 47,000 in 1935. The value of live stock in Texas in 1935 was near the four hundred million mark, an increase of one hundred fifty million from the depression low in 1935.

Because of the great forage crops raised in the South Texas range country this past year, there has been more fattening of range cattle than has been known for years in this section. Experiments such as that conducted by Messrs. Wroe and McKnight will assist in the growth of the balanced farming movement in the Winter Garden section. Farmers in the San Antonio trade territory have begun to rotate vegetables with feed crops, which they are marketing by feeding to beef steers, dairy cows, pigs and poultry.

EMPTY NEST.

The robin's nest is empty by the door,
The young birds grew so fast—
Tested their wings one golden summer's day, Found the world strange and vast,
Wavered in flight from locust tree to oak,
Called to their mother flying very near,
Begging for cherries that she still supplied,
Then stronger grown, one day they were not here.

My little ones are sleeping safe to-night
But fledgling birds soon grow and leave the nest,
God be with mine when they at last take flight,
And let me know not sorrow, but content.

KUDZU ROPES DOWN LAND; KEEPS THE FARM AT HOME.

Kudzu, a vigorous legume vine that came out of Japan—used for some time as a forage crop in the South—is now being used by the Soil Conservation Service in thousands of places to control gully and soil washing on Soil Conservation Service demonstration projects all through the Southeastern States, according to R. Y. Bailey, in charge of Soil Conservation Service operations in Alabama. While kudzu is a good forage plant, Mr. Bailey is more interested in its soil-binding value. It literally ropes land down and checks that destructive washing and gully wasting which have ruined so much once rich farm land in the Southern States," he says.

THE WAY OF SALVATION.

By Rev. J. T. Horgor.

ARTICLE NO. 20.

We now take up the Galatian epistle, which is addressed to all the church of Galatia. Evidently Paul, in days gone by, had evangelized and established churches throughout that country and later he had been sent prisoner to Rome. And while there he learned that Jewish teachers had come in and were leading the Galatian churches astray, back to the Moral Law, and the ordinance of circumcision, as indispensable requisites to salvation. The resorting to the Moral Law as a means of salvation has been common with both the unsaved and the Christians weak in faith in every age of the world. The faith in this is easily seen when we realize that man is fallen and corrupt, sinful, condemned, and ready in a lost and ruined state. What can the moral law do for him? It knows no mercy; it offers no forgiveness; it has no power to transform character. The law merely declares the right and approves the deed thereof; on the other hand it declares the wrong and condemns the wrong-doer, but offers no remedy; but witnesses against him in time and eternity. And yet the law of righteousness is the standard to which God proposes to bring every true believer in Christ, not by the RULE of the law, but by the powers of the Spirit.

Then we notice that, referring to the mere ordinance of circumcision St. Paul declares that neither circumcision nor uncircumcision avail anything; but a new creature does. The same rule applies to water baptism; separate and apart from its significance as a symbol, it falls to the ground absolutely worthless. So circumcision was given by Jehovah to Abram, wrought in flesh, but its greatest significance is found in its SPIRITUAL IMPORT. Literally, circumcision is the act of taking away a part of the body that is naturally corrupt, and also much inclined to contract sexual disease; therefore, especially to the Jew, to be circumcised implied cleanness of body and soul. But its greatest significance was in its spiritual meaning as a type. It was first given to Abram, fifteen years AFTER his justification, when God called him, saying, "Walk before me and be thou PERFECT." He was there called to sanctification and a holy life, Gen. 17:27, which brought about a radical and great change in the character and life of Abram, and also Sarai, his wife, wherefore God changed his name from Abram to Abraham and hers from Sarai to Sarah, and gave them the sign of circumcision, implying not only their physical cleansing but also their spiritual cleansing—their sanctification and that of a life of holiness.

Now let us turn to Deut. 30:6 which was about 460 years after Abram received circumcision, when Moses was making his last talk to the Israelites just before their entrance into Canaan, he gave them this promise: "The Lord thy God shall circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live." We see that is HEART circumcision, to take away their carnal-minded uncleanness as they might love God with all their heart and soul, and that they might abound in Divine life. Note how well suited this promise was to Israelites, who were in the next few days to cross the Jordan River, another of God's symbols of the carnal mind, and thereby to enter Canaan, a type of the state and life of holiness. And to this agrees St. Paul, who in Rom. 2:29, says: "And circumcision is that of the heart, in the Spirit, and not in the letter." Then St. Paul in Gal. 4:1-7, sets forth the new birth from its earliest state till fully established. We quote these 7 verses, "Now I say, that the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the appointed time of the Father. Even so we, when we were (spiritual) children, were in bondage under the element of this world." This is the first or embryo state of Divine life. Study the state and condition of the Disciples of John the Baptist before they had found Jesus their Savior. And remember we every one pass the same way, and have the same experience, if on the way to salvation at all. At this point the most people who are moved by the Spirit, for the lack of a proper leadership, are brought into the church, and often the embryo, for lack of spiritual nourishment, is never developed into Divine life. But these being brought into the church by formal education, confession and confirmation, many of them, no doubt, are not touched by the Spirit and never reach even the embryo state of Divine life.

We continue: "But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth his son, made of a woman, made under the Law, to redeem them that were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Note that Paul seems to be referring to the TIME when God sent forth Jesus to die for the sins of the whole world; but let us realize that it is all equally true that God, by the power of the Holy Ghost, when the TIME comes, sends forth His son into the heart of each believer in the act of regeneration. "And because we are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father." It is the Spirit of Christ, and not the Holy Ghost, that enters into the heart to establish regeneration. "Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir (of the gift of the Holy Ghost) of God through Christ." This ends Gal. 4:7. And taking up again at 4:9, "But now, after ye have known God, rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly element, wherunto ye desire again to be in bondage." Back to the Law, which draws into bondage and never delivers. Gal. 4:21, "Tell me, ye that desire to be under the Law, do ye not hear the Law? For it is written, that Abraham had two sons; the one by a bond maid, and the other by a free woman. But he who was of the bond woman was born after the flesh; but he of the free woman was by promise." "Which things are an allegory: For these are the two covenants; the one from Mt. Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar." Then refers to Isaac as the child born unto Sarah, a type of the New Testament covenant, whose church and children were and are made free by grace. We restate: Now Abraham stood for God the Father; and he took the bond maid, full of natural life, and begat a natural son, who had all the proclivities, who typified a convert made by the Law. Several years later, God promised Abraham that Sarah, who had always been barren, and then too old, according to nature, to bear, that she would bear a son by the supernatural power imparted to her of God; thus Isaac was a God-given type of a true Spirit-born child of God. And Ismael, the son of Agar, the bond woman, was a type of the character produced by human obedience to a moral law. So God said, "Cast out the bond woman and her child; for they shall be heirs with the free woman and her child."

FARMERS CARE FOR TIMBER AS CONSERVATION MEASURE.

Farmers in many parts of the country are beginning to pay more attention to the care of their farm woodlands as a measure of soil and moisture conservation and more profitable timber production, says the Soil Conservation Service. It cites, for example, the case of a woman who operates a farm near Lexington, N. C., in a demonstration area of the Service. Her woodland comprises 10 acres, and one section of the plot consists largely of mixed oaks, mainly white, red, and post oaks. Another section is mainly in shortleaf pine and red cedar. Sleet storms had damaged the pines and cedars greatly, but the oaks fared somewhat better.

As a part of the demonstration, Conservation men got to work and removed the pines when the tops were so badly broken by the storms that growth had practically stopped and decay had set in. Cedars, which were badly bent by the wind and which showed no signs of straightening, were cut for fence posts. Work did not stop there. Dogwood and various shrub species which supply food for game birds and other wildlife were left standing. Some of the gums, sourwoods, and red maples were cut out, especially where they were interfering with the growth of the more desirable trees.

That woodland is now in much better condition. The danger from fire and from insect and plant-disease attacks has been greatly reduced. Remaining trees now may grow more rapidly since the competition is not so keen. And the spaces left by trees cut out supply a fertile seed bed for a future crop.

FAT STOCK SHOW.

(Federal-State Market News Service)

San Antonio, Texas, March 1, 1937.—The grand champion steer of the South-West Texas Boys' Fat Stock show at San Antonio, a Hereford fed by J. D. Jordan, a 4-H Club boy from Mason, Texas, sold Saturday at public auction to Mrs. Jas. A. Gallagher, Jr., at 60 cents per pound. The calf, born January 20, 1936, weighed 985 pounds, and was also champion of the milk fed group. The champion of the dry lot division was a Hereford steer exhibited by August Jordan, also of Mason, and was sold to the Apache Packing Company at 21 cents per pound. The first ten calves brought an average of $11.18 and the first twenty calves averaged $10.86.

The champion lamb, a Rambouillet, entered by Harry Cowden of Kerrville, brought 50 cents per pound and was purchased by the Securities State Bank at Pearsall, Texas.

The champion hog, a Hampshire fed by Calip Howard of Catarina, was sold to Swift and Company, for $13.00 per hundred-weight. Bulk of the other fat hogs averaged $10.52.

Kyle Holloman of Kerrville had the champion goat, an Angora. It was purchased by C. H. Gurinsky at 8 cents per pound. Bulk of the other sales averaged 6 cents.

The grand champion steer of the show last year brought 93 cents per pound; the champion lamb 50 cents per pound; the champion hog $13.00 per hundred-weight; and the champion goat $50.00.

"OLD HUTCH".

Wallace Beery plays one of his most human roles in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer story, "Old Hutch", which shows Monday and Tuesday at the Colonial Theatre.

The narrative is an account of the highly amusing adventures of the laziest man in town, following his discovery of $100,000 in thousand dollar bills.

Beery, in the title role, is at his best. Obviously "Old Hutch" is unable to cash any of the bills. For him to exhibit money in such denominations would be madness. Accordingly, he goes to work in order to impress his fellow townspeople, hoping that it will appear more possible to cash a thousand dollar bill later. Meanwhile the bandits who originally hid the money, rediscover it in the cache where Old Hutch left it. They virtually kidnap him and in the escape, he manages to wreck their car. The bandits are caught, of course, and the lovable old character receives the reward, which is enough for his needs, even for luxuries.

Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker are teamed in the romantic leads.

PRESENTING FOOD TO AN INVALID CHILD.

By Juliette Frazier, D. Litt.

The finicky appetite of the invalid child often presents a very serious problem, because unless the child can be made to eat willingly a sufficient amount of nourishing food, not only his progress back to health will be greatly retarded, but his present condition may be impaired from lack of strength.

To a healthy hungry child any appetizing dish looks tempting, but the invalid has little interest in or desire for food. Therefore, the tray should not only be attractive, but it should bring a little surprise to cause a thrill of pleasure in order to induce a healthy impulse to eat. All children's minds are open to the influence of the unusual in the appearance of food, and this is especially true of the child needing to be brought back to normal appetite.

There are many surprising and odd ways of presenting the food in order to induce the invalid to at least try the food. For instance, one way of serving cereals is to serve it in an apple basket. Select a firm, rosy apple and cut off the top, scrape out the inside, being very careful to have it keep its shape, then fill with any kind of cereal, either hot or cold, replace the top, add a handle made from a slice of another apple. Serve with cream. The slight apple flavor with the cereal will be enjoyed.

A banana skin may be filled with custard garnished with tiny cubes of gelatin. Orange skins may be used in similar ways.

A clever method of keeping a plate of food warm while amusing a small boy is by covering it with a miniature scout tent made on a long hatpin with stiff white paper, and a little flag or pennant flying above. The tent should be made to fit over the plate. The pin holds it in place while the food can be eaten from the opening in front.

A vegetable or fruit man will amuse any small child. The body of the vegetable man may be a potato ball with green peas for buttons and string beans for arms. The face may be a slice of parsnip with tiny bits of other vegetables for eyes, nose and mouth. A slice of beet which is trimmed with a sprig of celery makes his hat. His legs may be small carrots, and his feet cut from a slice of beet. These parts are joined with toothpicks, if they do not hold together of themselves.

Slices of pineapple, oranges, bananas, apples, pears or any other kind of suitable fruits may be used to form the body, arms and legs of the fruit man. Raisins, dates and figs may serve for eyes, nose and mouth and trimmings.

A variety of suitable foods may be wrapped in tissue paper or pretty paper napkins, tied with ribbons or colored string and the packages placed in a little fancy basket. Start the invalid guessing what is in each package, or make it a grab game and excite interest in the mystery. Curiosity being stimulated and a bit of fun started, the food will often be eaten with enjoyment. The parcels may contain small bread-and-butter sandwiches, bits of cold chicken, paper cups filled with custard or gelatin, little sponge cakes, fruit or any suitable dry food.

A glass of gelatin trimmed with a pretty paper lace doily tied over the top with ribbon is so tempting that it would be a nice present to send to a sick child. A pretty card or a small top may be tied with the bow of ribbon.

A small box covered with crepe paper may contain some delicious bit of food done up in wax paper, or a small gift or both. The box is tied with ribbon, a handle is made for it of twisted crepe paper or cord. Flowers of some sort may be placed at each side of the handle or tiny dolls may be fastened there instead like tiny sentinels.

MAKING FLOWER POTS FROM OLD TIN CANS.

By Ida Rice Humphreys.

Old tin cans may be made very useful and ornamental as flower pots. Take any round can from a quart upward. They should also be deeper than wide. However, other cans of other shapes may be used.

The bottom must be pierced so as to have a means of drainage, otherwise water lying in it would make the earth sour. All boughten ones have one large hole in the center of pot, but it is much easier to make a number of small holes by means of a three or four inch sharp nail, or ice pick. Turn the cans upside down, and with a hammer a few holes can easily be made.

Having made the holes, we now think about the appearance of our flower pot. Purchase about seven pounds of asphalt and melt in an old pot for this purpose. Be sure the pot has no holes in it. The asphalt should be as thin as possible, therefore have it boiling good. Then remove from fire and dip the tin cans in one by one. They can be managed with a stick or by tying a string to one, threading it thru one of the holes in the bottom.

Now put at once into a box of clean dry sand, and roll over well, seeing that the sand is inside of can as well as out.

The purpose of the asphalt is not for ornament only, but that it may give the cans a coating thru which water cannot penetrate. Treated in this way they are not liable to rust.

Other coatings may be used instead of sand. The dry packing moss used by florists will give a very good effect. If one wishes to use this it may be put on exactly as in the case of the sand. When the asphalt has hardened the pot is very presentable and one that can be used exactly as an ordinary earthenware pot.

Administration's Billion Dollar Housing Bill Introduced—Epidemic of Sit-Down Strikes—Townsend Convicted of Contempt of House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER of New York and Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama introduced simultaneously in the senate and house the administration bill setting up a program for the construction of homes for "families of low income." Under the measure the government may lend to state or local housing authorities $1,000,000,000, from July 1, 1937, to July 1, 1941, the money for this purpose to be raised by bond issues and the loans to be supervised by a new department, the United States Housing authority. To supplement the loans congress is asked to appropriate $50,000,000 to be paid in outright grants. The loans are to bear interest at not less than the going federal rate and are to be payable over such a period, not to exceed 60 years, as the authority may determine.

Competition with private industry is guarded against, according to the authors, "by insuring that housing projects shall be at all times available only to families who are in the low income groups."

The four year program calls for the construction of 375,000 family dwelling units at an average cost of $4,000 a unit. Wagner and Steagall insisted that the bill called for "decentralization."

"All the direction, planning, and management in connection with publicly assisted housing projects are to be vested in local authorities, springing from the initiative of the people in the communities concerned," they stated. "The federal government will merely extend its financial aid through the medium of these agencies. The only exception to the strictly decentralized administration is that the federal government may set up a few demonstration projects in order that local areas without adequate instrumentalities of their own may benefit by an experience in low rent housing."

HAVING virtually countenanced the sit-down strike in the case of the General Motors controversy, the administration found itself embarrassed by that favorite maneuver of John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Out in Monica, Calif., about 200 employees of the Douglas Aircraft corporation went on strike and "sat down" in the big plant, completely stopping work on $24,000,000 worth of airplanes the company is building for the government. The men defied a trespass warning and an order to evacuate the plant sent them by the police, and Mr. Douglas refused to negotiate with the union until the strikers got out of the buildings. The situation was complicated by a quarrel over worker representation between the Automobile Workers' union, a C. I. O. group, and the Machinists' union, allied with the A. F. of L.

Finally the strikers were indicted for conspiring to violate two old California laws against forcible entry and trespassing, and when 300 armed deputies appeared at the plant, they surrendered and were taken to Los Angeles for arraignment.

Another big government job was halted for a time by a sit-down strike of employees of the Electric Boat company at Groton, Conn., which is building submarines for the navy. There, however, the local and state police soon evicted the trespassers and arrested them, and the rest of the employees, a large majority, resumed work.

Speaking "not as an officer of the administration," Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said that any sit-down strike "that undertakes to take over private property is a very serious and fundamental thing and in my opinion will not be long endured by the courts."

There was almost an epidemic of strikes throughout the country, many of them of the sit-down variety. Some were settled in short order but others are still on at this writing. Among these was the strike at the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation in North Chicago, where the disgruntled workers refused to leave the plant. Gov. Henry Horner was striving earnestly to bring about a settlement.

John L. Lewis' threat, during the General Motors strike, that "Ford and Chrysler are next," is being carried out. The United Automobile Workers union sent to Walter P. Chrysler demands that the U. A. W. be recognized by his corporation as the sole collective bargaining agency.

OPEN warfare by the government on private power interests will be started soon if the recommendations of President Roosevelt to congressional leaders are acted upon favorably. In letters to Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead, the President urged that prompt action be taken to provide for the sale of electric power from the $51,000,000 Bonneville project on the Columbia river in Oregon; and he intimated this might be taken as the forerunner of a national power policy. The recommendations were in accord with a report from the committee on national power policy and also with the position Mr. Roosevelt took in the controversy with Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chairman, who favored co-operation with existing power companies and consideration for their investment.

Here is what the President proposed:

1.—That not less than 50 per cent of the power generated at Bonneville be reserved for sale to public authorities, such as states, districts, counties, municipalities and other sub-divisions and to co-operative associations of citizens.

2.—That the government construct its own transmission lines, substations and other facilities for transporting power so as to make the government project independent of existing utility companies.

3.—That the federal government control the re-sale rates to consumers through regulation by the federal power commission.

4.—That the power be sold at rates low enough to promote the widest use of electrical energy, particularly to domestic and rural consumers. These rates, the President insisted, should be fixed with relation to only that part of the total $51,000,000 Bonneville investment that the government saw fit to charge to power generation.

5.—That the federal agency administering the project be authorized to acquire by eminent domain if need be, land, franchises, existing transmission lines.

DR. FRANCIS E. TOWNSEND, the elderly Californian who devised the old age pension plan bearing his name, was found guilty of contempt of the house of representatives because he refused to testify before a house committee that was investigating his scheme last spring and "took a walk" out of the committee room. The verdict, rendered by a jury in the District of Columbia court, made the doctor liable to a sentence of one to twelve years in jail or a fine of from $100 to $1,000, or both.

Dr. Townsend

Judge Peyton Gordon deferred sentence until he could pass on a motion for a new trial.

Townsend seemed rather to welcome the verdict, saying he had expected it. "Lord bless you, I'll be all the more active," he said when asked what effect a conviction would have on his movement. "I think it will be the general opinion that I have been the victim of an injustice. Our organization will be spurred to greater efforts."

FOLLOWING the example set by the five operating railway brotherhoods—engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen—the sixteen non-operating brotherhoods, with a membership of 800,000, have voted to demand wage increases averaging 30 cents an hour. This action was taken at a meeting in Chicago of the general chairmen of the brotherhoods. Besides the pay increase, the men ask the guarantee of full time employment for all regularly assigned workers and two-thirds time for "standby" employees.

The non-operating brotherhoods embrace the clerks, telegraphers, carmen, shop laborers, machinists, blacksmiths, dispatchers, boiler-makers, drop forgers, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, freight handlers, express and station employees, maintenance of way men, signal men and sleeping car conductors.

PLANS for the complete blockade of Spain by the other European powers, in order to starve out the civil war, met with difficulties owing to the bringing up of points involving the national honor of France and Russia. The French made certain objections to the land patrol and the Russians to the sea patrol.

The Spanish loyalists were making a desperate effort to capture Oviedo, where the insurgent garrison was attacked by dynamite throwing Basques. The defenders, numbering about 12,000 men, were hard pressed and it seemed impossible that relief forces could reach the city in time to save them. In the Madrid sector, too, the rebels were getting the worst of it, for the government forces were about ready to make a mass assault on Pinzaron hill from which the Franco artillery has been shelling the Madrid-Valencia road.

speculation. The commission securities exchange are asked to adopt certain regulations suggested by the securities and exchange commission. The proposed rules would put exchange members on the same trading basis as the general public. They would have to put up the 55 per cent margin required of other securities purchasers, and would be required to do this by 5 p. m. of the day of purchases.

In announcing the commission's step, Chairman James M. Landis told reporters:

"This procedure is in accordance with a plan of the commission to give the exchanges the opportunity to regulate the trading activities of their own members. This course, which has been adopted by the commission on previous occasions, will allow greater flexibility in the administration of the rules and will permit minor adaptations to the various exigencies of individual exchanges. While the responsibility for the enforcement of these rules will thus lie with the exchanges, the commission will observe both their enforcement and their effectiveness."

CHAIRMAN HENRY F. ASHURST of Arizona gathered together the members of his judiciary committee and began formal consideration of President

Sen. Ashurst

Roosevelt's proposition for federal judiciary reform, including the packing of the Supreme court. It was understood the committee would arrange for public hearings at which opponents and proponents of the plan would be privileged to speak their minds. Not long before, Mr. Ashurst and several other senators were called to the White House to discuss the strategy of the fight the administration faces. The Arizona senator and Majority Leader Joe Robinson of Arkansas, who was among the conferees, only recently were vociferous in declaring a constitutional amendment was the only proper way to accomplish the President's purpose. But now they are obediently supporting the administration measure.

Senators Frazier of North Dakota, Bone of Washington and Nye of North Dakota also were summoned to the White House, but what they heard there did not change their stand against the President's plan. Mr. Nye, indeed, soon after delivered a radio address against it. He did not especially defend the Supreme court, but said he thought there are better ways of attaining the objective in conformity to the Constitution than the way of packing the court proposed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Ex-President Herbert Hoover in an address before the Union League club of Chicago uttered solemn warning that the President's plan was a serious threat against the ultimate safeguard of liberty, and condemned any such "quick and revolutionary change in the Constitution."

At this writing 42 senators have declared against the bill; 32 are on record for it, and the rest have not committed themselves. The administration leaders expected to pick up at least 12 from the non-committal group, and claimed more.

JOHN G. WINANT, who as chairman of the social security board had a lot of trouble with certain senators over patronage and whose reappointment to membership on the board had not been confirmed by the senate, sent his resignation to the President. Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Winant was retiring to attend to pressing private business and would be back in the federal service before very long. The former governor of New Hampshire has been considered a logical candidate for the post of secretary of social welfare if that department is created by congress.

Succeeding Mr. Winant as chairman is Arthur J. Altmeyer, already a member of the board. To fill the vacancy in the membership the President nominated Murray W. Latimer of New York.

OFFERING to make peace with the Chinese communists against whom it has waged war for ten years, the National government at Nanking announced the terms on which those reds would be allowed participation in national affairs. The Kuomintang's demands are: Abolition of the communist army and its incorporation in the National government forces; dissolution of the Chinese communist state and its unification with the central government; cessation of red propaganda opposed to Kuomintang principles, and stoppage of the class struggle which divides society into antagonistic classes and invites mutual destruction.

That the Nanking government is steadily growing stronger is made evident in the more conciliatory attitude adopted lately by Japan. A spokesman for Hayashi's new cabinet in Tokyo indicated Japan was willing to abate its demands for simultaneous settlement of all pending Sino-Japanese incidents and negotiate separate settlements for each.

gan as tenants and will be to the end of their lives. Some have no desire to shoulder the responsibilities of ownership, others have not the capacity to meet and conquer the problems that the land owner sometimes has to solve.

So the problem is an individual one. A statute, if one should be enacted, and if successful in accomplishing the desired end, must take the individual into consideration and ignore the mass. A tenant who shows ability to become and remain a land owner should be given opportunity to do so. The tenant who wishes nothing more than to be secure in tenancy should be given such assistance as he desires and can assimilate.

Rugged individualism is a characteristic of people in United States. So long as that individualism is used to advance its owner and not injure or destroy others, it is admirable. And it must be taken into consideration in any statute or regulation touching the tenancy problem.

INTOLERABLE!

Writing in the New York Herald Tribune, Nicholas Roosevelt recently said: "If the tax problem is to be solved a nation-wide reappraisal of the functions of government, local and state as well as national, is necessary. In particular do we need a careful study of all proposed expenditures, and their classification into compulsory and secondary categories. Obviously, such expenditures as the salaries of school teachers, policemen and other public servants cannot be cut. But equally obviously many millions of dollars are being spent by government for unnecessary purposes. These expenditures should be reduced or eliminated.

"The process will be painful, but until it is faced, there can be no hope for reduced taxes. And SO LONG AS TAXES REMAIN AT THEIR PRESENT HIGH LEVELS THE AVERAGE MAN AND WOMAN WILL BE DEVOTING NEARLY TWO MONTHS OF EACH YEAR'S WORK TO EARNING MONEY TO PAY TAXES TO SUPPORT POLITICIANS. This is clearly intolerable."

In other words, we must do something beside talk about taxes—we must act. We must approach the problem scientifically and logically. We must demand that our representatives in public office follow the path of economy, efficiency and fiscal reason.

There is hope that the next Congress will attack the problem of Federal taxation and expenditures with a view both to reducing the cost of government, and more wisely allocating the money spent. It is proper that Congress take the lead in such a vital program—and then all other units of government should fall in.—Industrial News Review.

GROWING PIGS.

By V. M. Couch.

No animal can be checked in its growth, no matter what its age may be, without being weakened and stunted more or less, and even if it has extra care afterwards, it is an exception if it ever attains the size which it naturally would have reached had its growth not been hindered.

With all young stock, especially hogs and cattle the highest physical condition is essential for rapid growth. In getting a pig started right and keeping it thrifty so as to make a profitable animal out of it, a good grass pasture is necessary. By having the sow in a movable house when she farrows, the pigs can be given all the free range advantage. The tender grass in the spring comes nearer the composition of the mother's milk than any other product of the farm, and then when they are getting grass, they get exercise which is essential in the pig's life. Grass helps to produce a strong, bony, muscular frame, so as to develop them into a condition for feeding corn in the fall; yet, grass must not be depended upon alone. Grain products are necessary, but the grass supply should be continuous throughout the summer. It sets the pig back if the supply of grass food fails in midsummer. In early fall when there is corn and other green stuff to take its place it does not effect them so much. Alfalfa and clover are the most reliable as an all-season pasture for pigs.

In past years the average farmer has considered it about the simplest thing on the farm to feed pigs, and when one comes to talk to this class about systematic feeding, they seem astonished, but it is the main factor in raising swine at a profit, nevertheless. Feeding pigs is an easy task, but when it is taken into consideration, the selection of food for the most thrifty and rapid growth, and knowing the importance of regularity, it is plain to understand that only those skilled in the work need to look for best results.

STRIP CROPS ON CONTOUR ELIMINATE "POINT" ROWS.

Contour farming is a fine way to reduce run-off and erosion on sloping fields, but strip cropping is even better, according to reports to the Soil Conservation Service.

Strip crops on the contour not only retard run-off but in most fields the close-planted crops take up the short, "point" rows that result from variations in the contour. Very few fields have the same angles of contour from one side to the other.

An experiment in the South showed that land planted on the contour to cotton alone lost 10 times as much soil as a similar field strip cropped with cotton and oats.

Land in cotton alone with rows up and down hill lost soil at the rate of 17 tons an acre and more than half of its rainfall. The strip cropped land averaged only half a ton per acre soil loss and lost only a little of its rainfall.

Strip cropping is alternating strips of close-growing, many-rooted crops—such as grasses, legumes or small grains—with rows of clean-tilled crops like corn and cotton. Strip crops spread out and soak up the water that runs off the row crops and act as barriers to any small gullies that may form in the freshly tilled soil.

OFF-HAND OBSERVATIONS

By Our Staff Contributor
R. R. CLARIDGE.

As an old line Democrat of the Billy Bryan, Jim Hogg, and Geo. B. Terrell persuasion, I am in rather close touch with the modern trend of journalism, and one of my off-hand observations is that to the best of my opinion, there were till recently but two papers of general circulation in the state or nation that "hewed to the line, let the chips fall where they may", in support of Democratic principles, and now there is but one left and that is FLETCHER'S FARMING. The other is dead, indicating how nearly Democracy has gone the way of all the earth.

There is an occasional county paper of local circulation that does not take its cue from the big dailies but still litters the earth with Thomas Jefferson chips, regardless of whether anybody likes the Democratic scatterment. I got hold of one of them recently, which gave me a most pleasurable jolt. It was the Big Sandy Times, and I'd like to hold reunion with that old line Democratic editor.

Most of the little Democracy left is in the country, and doubtless enough of it to have saved both papers; but the one that went dead, while a good and long time friend to the farmers, contained nothing relating to the business phase of farming; while Fletcher's Farming as to that is one of the best farm journals in the nation. And besides its farm readers, lots of city people like its politics.

After all, there are no signs that the only "all wool and a yard wide" Democratic paper left is headed for the junk heap, and there are no doubt enough of the same sort of Democrats left to see that it doesn't. And it doesn't cost much to keep it going.

At last somebody beside yours truly is waking up to the fact that ailed and abetted by the state Railroad Commission, the big oil producers,

A HODGE-PODGE PARTY.

By Juliette Frazier, D. Litt.

In the winter, an evening's diversion, for a few friends is not always easy to arrange. Cards are sometimes not desirable, but an entertainment which will provide more or less merriment is often difficult to plan.

A Hodge-Podge party provides lots of fun, for both young and old, and it is full of surprises. The invitations should be sent on odd scraps of paper and unmatched envelopes, and the wording written in two colors of ink.

For a party of sixteen have four tables—four at each table, divided into partners. Select partners by matching up picture postcards, cut across in different shapes, and numbered for the different couples and tables. These are to be used as score cards, the winning couple getting a gold star each time, and progressing to the next table, changing partners each time.

Prizes should be given to those who win the most stars—one for the boys and one for the girls. Second prizes may be given, if desired, or consolation rewards for the fewer number of stars.

Five minutes should be allowed for each game, and five minutes between games to allow for changing of seats and checking up scores. Start and stop with a bell signal.

At the first table you might have the old-fashioned game of jack-straws, which requires a skilled ers, by a tie-up of production, are starving transportation, labor, and everybody else, except the oil producers and their political henchmen. Later the "choke" producers, etc., are coming to hear a lot from the general community they are more over, showing a decided tendency to a veer to windward. Before the clamor for closing up the "choke" became so clamorous, one of the oil monopoly henchmen had the unmitigated gall to complain in print that increasing the production allotment would make gasoline cheaper, as if a little cheaper gas would be much set-back to the general public. By the way, if the Texas Railroad Commission was on its job for the public, the oil "choke" probably—in fact more certainly—would not have caused so much choking to business in general.

When the matter of old age pensions first got to be nearly all the talk, and while very few of the talkers on the subject let their tongues run loose to the extent as did Dr. Townsend, for $200 a month, we hardly expected that there could ever get to be the gap between the Dr. Townsend view of help for the aged, and how far the Texas Legislature has wandered in the opposite direction. There is certainly lots of room between $200 a month and the Gov. Allred and Clint Small comedown to a meager charity hand-out to the old folks and a pauper's oath to get it.

But Dr. Townsend is after more than help for the warring generation. He is after some "inflation" and realizes that for the past few years it has been badly needed. But so little has been said on that side of the question, I have been surprised at the number of fairly well informed people who do not know that inflation means more money in circulation. Well, with the Veterans' bonus, the WPA and old age pension we are getting—not as much inflation as we need, but it is helping a lot, and even some of the daily papers are coming to see that inflation is not so bad.

touch. The second table might have a game of tiddeley-winks, the third have two sets of picture puzzles. The partners first completing the picture being the winners. The fourth table should provide the most fun. Have a lot of old hats and millinery trimmings, with plenty of pins. Here the boys are to trim the hats, with suggestions only from the girls. Then the girls are to don the hats and parade around the room to get votes as to which hat is the most stunning creation. Tab is kept on the votes by having a list of names of those present entered on two sheets of paper, and making each one put a cross opposite his or her name on either one of the lists.

For the refreshments have a "hodge-podge salad" made of canned salmon, spaghetti, chopped pimientos, celery and ripe olives, and mixed with mayonnaise, garnished with bits of sweet pickle. Place a neat amount of this mixture on lettuce leaves, with a slice of red tomato on top. Serve with cream cheese and crackers. For beverage, have hot cocoa, with a marshmallow in each cup. With this serve small mixed cakes frosted in red, green, white, and yellow.

Give your hometown printer the first chance when you need the service of a printer. The more business he does the better prepared he is to give you efficient service. The more you patronize the home man the more you both prosper.
